New Ideas Offered.

A great many things which make for improvement in homemaking on The Constitution and Volunteer Food Stores Cooking School and Food Show. First, it offers the housewife, who is weary of the old routine, an opportunity to learn of newer, better, more artistic, but not the least bit more expensive, ways to prepare dishes which will bring new joy, not only to herself in the preparation of the dish, but to the family and guests who are so fortunate as to share it. It gives her an opportunity to see in It gives her an opportunity to see in practical use, many new devices that will lessen the labor of her household tasks. From her comfortable seat in the audience she looks into a cheery kitchen with all the necessary equipment, conveniently arranged, and not only adds to her knowledge of cooking but learns how household decoration and economy may go hand in hand Nor do the suggestions end there, for a well-equipped laundry and an at-tractively appointed dining room give promise of still further household as-

In the midst of all the attractive In the midst of all the attractive array of equipment, the eager housewife will find Mrs. Stafford ready with her cheery, helpful counsel, encouraging her to take a new interest in things, which, through daily repetition, have become monotonous and irksome. It all is so simple, so easy, so practical and the results so uniformly successful that it would be a very unresponsive homemaker who does not go home daily with a renewed ambition.

New Treat in Store. On Tuesday at 8:30 a. m. the doors of Georgia theater will be opened, and promptly at 9 o'clock Mrs. Stafford will appear on the stage to begin this interesting program. To those who plan to attend for the first time, let it be said that there will be nothing ordinary or tiresome. To the conordinary or tiresome. To the con-stant goers—and there will be many of them—the foregoing statement is unnecessary. They know from past experience that a rare treat is in store for them.

An especially interesting and varied

An especially interesting and varied program is promised this year—meats, vegetables, baking, salads and sandwiches. Not a phase of cooking or homemaking has been overlooked in this four-day program. Each day will be complete by itself. At the end of each session there will be awards of the market baskets, which contain packages of the products used in the school cooking demonstration. in the school cooking demonstration.

CHICAGO, June S.—(P)—An electric train was speeding toward downtown Chicago last night at the rate of 60 miles an hour.

Three-year-old Arthur King, who had wandered from home, pered through his thick-lensed glasses and started to cross the tracks.

Passengers waiting at a station shouted in horror, but before they could attract the boy's attention the train struck him.

The train crew took him to a hospital, where physicians found

THREE MEALS A DAY

THE INDISPENSABLE EGG. "The egg is the cement that holds all the castles of cookery together." I might add another proverb that my grandmother used to quote: "Judge ye thy cookery by the number of eggs ye use!" Which, interpreted, means "the more eggs the merrier," or something on that order. Eggs are taken seriously in practically every civilized country in the world. They were recognized as an important article of food long before science came forward with the facts that have established eggs officially in the daily diet, particularly in the diet of children. Just in case you aren't familiar with these scientific discoveries: eggs are rich sources of phosphorous and iron, and of vitamins A, B, D and G. Growing children, especially, need vitamins, if they are to maintain good health.

Eggs have progressed along with human knowledge. In the old days we used to think the hen had done her duty if she laid 60 eggs a year—and most of those during the spring months. Nowadays, it's quite the usual thing to find flocks of hens with a laying average of quite the usual thing to find flocks of hens with a laying average of 180 eggs apiece. The record is held by a prize barred Plymouth Rock hen who laid 334 eggs in one year.

There are several amusing but well-established superstitions about egg selection. Some persons insist on buying dark-shelled eggs; others, the white-shelled variety. Now, the color of the shell depends on the breed of the laying hen, and has no more to do with the nutritive quality or the flavor of the contents than has the color of clothes with the character of the person beneath. The color of the egg yolk depends on the feed of the hens. Deep yellow pigment is due to the pigment in the grains and greens the hen eats. The important differences in eggs are size and cost. The external characters mean little.

Now let me give you a favorite like the wall-known enjeuxe George.

external characters mean little.

Now let me give you a favorite dish that well-known epicure, George Rector.—"Eggs Florentine." To prepare Eggs Florentine, line custard cups or ramekins with finely chopped, well-seasoned spinach. Break an egg into each, cover with a rich white sauce, and sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake in moderate oven until the eggs are set and the cheese is melted.

EN TOUR WITH CHEESE.

"I'll make an end of dinner; there's pippins and cheese to come!"
In "The Merry Wives of Windsor" William Shakespeare gave one of his royal characters this now famous line. It has probably been echoed by millions of cheese-hungry more or less royal persons since.

Centuries before Mr. Shakespeare started writing his plays, cheese lovers were making literature. You can find your favorite after-dinner delicacy mentioned in the Bible. Cheese was a favorite food of the Greek athlets. In France 900 years ago, at least, Roquefort cheese was ripening in the grottoes of Combala.

And when you say cheese you can afford a broad vision. There are some 200 kinds.

Fach cheese has its ardent cham-

200 kinds. Each cheese has its ardent champions, but he is luckiest who likes all cheeses. For variety certainly keeps dinner from becoming a monotonous affair.

Pursuing and sampling famous cheeses in their native haunts is a favorite pastime for many tourists in Europe. They follow the canals of Holland, where they see barges piled high with the red, cannon-ball Edam cheeses. They descend to the cheese cares of France, where the blueveined Roquefort is rpening. They loiter on the grassy slopes of Switzerland, lunching on bread and the exquisite Swiss cheeses. In Italy they make their obeisance to Gorgonzola, the creamy Bel Paese and the sharp Parmesan.

Arrived at last in London, travel-weary tourists will perk up and ex-perience an ecstatic thrill in restau-rants when they see wheeled toward them huge cylinders of cheeses— great millstones of Cheshire cheese and Stitton.

In America you may expect cheese to make its appearance at any course during luncheon or dinner—as appearance.

during luncheon or dinner—as appetizer, cracker spread or toasted, grated, in soup, or with the fish course, which might happen to be a delicately flavored fish fillet of sole or fillet of haddock, served with a Mornay sauce—a cream sauce enriched with butter and cheese.

If cheese hasn't appeared in the fish course, perhaps it will be in the vegetables—in scalloped potatoes or in potato croquets; on broccoli or fresh asparagus or tomatoes. Halves of tomatoes, topped with a slice of American cheese and broiled, are always welcome with the meat course. Or cheese may come to dinner in the dessert course, usually in the old-fashioned way, with a piece of hot apple pie.

I've wandered here, and wandered there.

And found ideas I want to share
With you. I hope that they will be A help to you and family.
There is nothing as helpful, I think, as finding an interesting and absolutely different way of "doing things" around the home. And I've had so many requests for new little "hunches"

If you are one of the people who think that the addition of an egs helps enormously when you are making of fee, try this: Let the whites of two eggs become dry by leaving them on a shallow dish. Then crumble and mix this with your whole pound of coffee. This will save you both time and eggs, as the dried whites do not spoil. Of course, even the addition of egg whites won't make your coffee as delicious as you expect unless you use the best grade of coffee. Most of our better brands are made up of various blends from different countries and have a generous amount of the coffee grown in Colombia, to give it the real flavor that coffee connoisseurs appreciate.

Live in the Sunshine of health

IS YOUR life like a clear, bright day? Or are your waking hours clouded with poor health - affecting not only your own happiness, but also your manner toward others? Isn't it a fact that the people who smile most frequently are those who live in the sunshine of good health?

Poor health is so often due to common constipation. This condition can be relieved by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to assist elimination.

ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of bloodbuilding iron.

The "bulk" in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. With each meal in severe cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, or cook into muffins, omelets, breads, etc. How much better than dosing yourself with habitforming patent medicines.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

It exhibited tables showing that the "dividends declared on stated value of common stock" since 1923 had been as high as 92 per cent for a single year. This was in the case of the Canton Electric Light and of the Canton Electric Light and Power Company, a northern New York concern, which was represented as having paid that amount in 1925. The company was listed in the same table as having declared divi-dends of 13 per cent in 1932.

AT SUPREME COURT HIGHWAY SOLUTION

The More Attractive the Bait, the Greater AUIO ACCIDENTS The Probability That It Contains a Hook -By Robert Quillen-

Debt isn't always unpleasant, nor is the making of debts always

The ordinary spendthrift American can accumulate property only by going into debt and then working his way out. That method has enabled many thousands of wage earners and salaried men to own homes, household chattels and bonds.

The thrifty will say that the same end could be achieved at less cost by accumulating the money before the property is bought, but they are the next harvest and a right only in theory. The fact is that spendthrifts won't save until they must, and debt provides the only protection from their inherent

> When that is said, however, the defense of debt is finished. In all other particulars it is bad.

> It was the making of debts—the practice of spending other people's oney—that brought us to our present state. If none of us had made unnecessary debts, the land would be as normal as it was before the war. Debt seems an easy way to obtain the thing desired, but its final toll double the worth of any benefit it provides.
> There are two kinds of debtors—those who are bound by a sense > honor and those who are not-but both pay too much for the thing Those bound by honor are never free of anxiety. They live in dread of loss; they deny themselves everything else to redeem their word; they endure humiliation and shame when the utmost they can do is not ough. They are slaves to a hard master.

And those without honor fare no better. They feel no anxiety or emorse, but they pay a dear price, none the less. In the beginning, easy credit seems like an increase of pay. They are able to live on a scale far above their deserts. The world is theirs for the taking. But their generous "buying" is not buying at all: it is a form of stealing. And the most tolerant community at last turns against them. They can buy nothing more without cash. They are hounded by collectors. No matter how brazen they are, they feel the town's contempt. They are "dead beats." And when disaster comes, they haven't a single equaintance who will trust them with a dime.

Don't fool yourself about it. The dollar in your pocket isn't yours you owe it to somebody else. And you always pay in the end-in cash or in reputation.

Climax Returns and Shows Fans He Still Can Win Ball Games.

By Jimmy Jones.

Climax Blethen, the grand old man om Maine, came back to Atlanta he spent five seasons and averaged 17 victories a season, only to be rackers, by pitching the seventh-place Knoxville Smokies to a 6-4 victory over the home club yesterday at Ponce de Leon park.

He didn't look right wearing that strange uniform. And it was diffi-cult to imagine him pitching for a strange team. But there he was, the same old Climax with the same brand

BEGINNING OF END.

For seven innings, Climax chewed his cud and pitched along calmly while his cud and pitched along calmly while the Smokies trailed a one-run lead. Meanwhile the robust Aube seemed to have everything under control. Then came the eighth inning. The Crackers had one of their customary brainstorms. The Smokies went out and got two runs for Old Climax and that was the finish of the Crackers.

They couldn't get a hard foul off the veteran righthander in the eighth and ninth and Climax breezed under the wire as fresh as a colt.

It was his fourth victory since transferring his allegiance to Knoxville and there discovering a bubbling fount of youth in the heart of the great Smoky mountains. Furthermors he has lost only one game since he went there and that was to Mem-he went there and that was to Mem-phis after he had that club licked, 1-0, for eight innings. In his only other appearance he pitched four and a half nings and saved a ball game for Jim Edwards.

Suffice it to say, there was hardly a person among the meagre assemblage vesterday who was not secretly putting on a little inward pressure in behalf of Climax. They could hardly help it, in view of the unselfish and Although not displaying the stuff he has shown in previous appearances with the Smokies, Climax was good enough to win, allowing for the enough to win, allowing for the Crackers' customary lapsing into moments of skullduggery just when they should be playing alert baseball. What is more. Blethen started two rallies by leading off with singles, getting himself two hits in addition to his work in the box.

AUBE DOES WELL.

Young Aube really pitched a better game than Climax. He gave only six hits, two of which came in the eighth and struck out four men. But the stocks right handes wilted. But e stocky right-hander wilted a bit under the oppressive heat in that in-ning, allowing the Smokies to tie the score at 4-all and forge two runs ahead after he had two men out.

Blethen opened the inning with a single to center. "Red" Brandes dropped a sacrifice bunt in front of the plate and Eddie Phillips, one Cracker putting two on and none out. French also essayed to bunt but forced Blethen at third, Aube to Rollings. Allington came up and slashed a low liner into right that McKee should have purposely passed to fill the sacks and then Holt drove a fly to Bonowitz. French racing in with the winning run. Allington later scored while the Crackers were chasing Hipps up and down the lines instead of watching the run on third.

The Crackers got two runs in the first inning and seemed well on the way to win. Susko and Bonowitz sin-gled with two out and Fred Sington preliminary fight misses or a long-drawn-out on-n-n-h as a good solid blow goes home. But as yet it is a happy crowd, dropped squarely on the right-field lines for a fluke double. Eddie Phillips rammed a long home run into the left-field bleachers for another acore in the second, while the fourth came in the fourth inning when Aube, who hit into the double play against Nashville Wednesday with the count three halls and one strike, atoned for it by doubling sharply to left. Dashiell beat out a hit to deep short on which Horne made a good play and Red Rollings came through with the prettiest hit of the day, a double to right, that scored the pitcher.

WEIRD GAME.

The sun, which has made Manhattan's millions unhappy today, is gone. But the big battery of lights glares down on the press rows and the heat is no less. Primo Carnera came in to a ringside seat. He sat down almost bashfully as the crowd about him laughed and applauded good naturedly.

Carnera looks younger than he did two years ago when I saw him lose to Jack Sharkey in Brooklyn. He reigns, the crowd came early for the greatest fight of the season.

The daylight savings time made it a bit bazzare in that the sun was still well up and the heat of one of New York's hottest days was still undiminished when the first preliminary went on.

The Yankee Stadium climbs high up through three

The Yankee Stadium climbs high up through three cavernous tiers. Clustered on the bench about the ring fight reporters were more than 100 feet below the roof of the topmost tier.

To the east was the great stretch of bleachers, extending from left field all the way across right field. Those in the right field bleachers were 350 feet away, those in center field 429 of chewing tobacco and the same mis- feet and those in left field 490 feet away. There was room chievous grin on his good-natured pan.

Roofs of towering apartment houses, showing above the leachers to the east, were jammed.

BEER SAVES THE DAY.

The crowd found one solace from the heat. Colonel Jake Ruppert, owner of the Yankees and the Yankee Stadium is also owner of Ruppert's Brewery. And Ruppert's Knickerbocker beer was going as fast as the boys could carry the iced bottles

At 8:20 o'clock, New York daylight time, which was just 6:20 in Atlanta, the first preliminary was getting finished up. It was still daylight but the lights in the stadium were on. Overhead two autogyros flew, pulling ads after them urging the fight fans to buy certain

There were a number of celebrities present early. Ben Hecht, former newspaper man and now one of the most successful of the young novelists, was just behind us in the first altogether meritorious service which he gave their ball club for five years.

And no harder worker or more conscientious pitcher ever drew on a glove than Climax.

And the first row of seats for spectators. He wore a gray suit and had on a yellow tie which was pulled loose from his neck because of the heat.

John F. McCooey, Brooklyn political leader, was also just back of the writer's section. Over to the left was Tommy Loughran, former light-heavyweight champion, and Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion and junior welter champion.

spectacle which every heavyweight fight offers. The great crowd is here. To those in the press rows the crowd sounds as if it were some talkie reel run off key. There is the discordant rattle and heavy surf of sound, lacking any definite chorus. The crowd is waiting for Joe Humphries, the famous leather-lunged announcer, climbed into the ring and asked that the Veterans of Foreign Wars, here to pay tribute to the late Commissioner Muldoon, come down to the ring.

"Hurry, please," said Joe. And the crowd laughed at this rge for speed in the tribute to the old iron duke. It was something of commentary on life.

The veterans failed to appear and there were catcalls and whistling from the crowd.

Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker for the Garden; Eddie Dowling, stage star; General John J. Phelan, Hope Hampton, E. P. Mulrooney, the beer czar of New York; Jacob Baer, father of Max Baer, one of tonight's principals, and other notables were observed about the ring.

Tommy Loughran and Steve Hamas, who meet here Monday, were introduced. The stadium was dark except for the white glare above the ring.

It was announced that the main event would go on before the two remaining preliminaries. The crowd began to roar. It broke into a storm as Max Baer came in followed a moment later by Max Schmeling. Suddenly the ring was filled with seconds, water boys, officials and photographers.

ANOTHER DEMPSEY VICTORY.

Jack Dempsey, introduced by Joe Humphries as the pugilistic idol of all times, got a magnificent hand. He came in and shook hands with each principal. * And then Joe Humphries did an inspired thing. He led Dempsey to the center of the ring and lifted his hand high in the token of victory—and the crowd roared again. The Old Mauler had stood that way often.

Baer wore a red-colored bathrobe. Schmeling, closely attended by Max Machon, his trainer, had on the old gray robe

JIM FOXX RAPS THREE HOMERS:

Ruth and Gehrig Also Hit for Circuit in 14-10 Loss.

The final count of the swatfest was 14 to 10.

The three homers gave Foxx a total of 11 so far. Lou Gehrig equaled that total with a circuit blow in the sixth and, after being tied for the major league lead, Babe Ruth regained the top place by clouting his twelfth homer in the last inning with young Raymond Coombs as his victim.

In spite of all this long-distance hitting, the game was not settled until the eighth inning, when the A's slammed over six runs off Wilcy Moore. Ed Coleman's double with the bases full was the deciding blow. Then a couple of walks and singles by Finney and Williams settled the argument.

All of Foxx's three homers came off Lefty Vernon Gomez and they accounted for five tallies. Gomez was driven to cover in the fifth when Jimmie's final circuit wallop, landing on the roof of the distant laft field stand

YANKEE STADIUM. NEW YORK. June 8.—(P)—While a platoon of blue coats fought to hold back a crowd of yelling fans that threatened to overrun his dressing room, Max Baer stood under a soothing shower and yodelled at the top of his lungs:
"Boys, I'm going to win that championship! I told you so. I'm going to win that championship!"
That was about all anybody could That was about all anybody could get out of the Livermore larruper. He was so happy over his stunning knockout of Max Schmeling, the former champion, a few minutes before that he wasn't interested in the details.

"How did I do it? Why. I just hung this right on that German's jaw," and he thrust out a fist that looked like a smoked Virginia ham.
"I think I could have put him away before the tenth round if my manager. Ancil Hoffman, had let me go. But he kept telling me to take it easy. That was the plan, to wait until Schmeling got a little tired, and then knock his block off. Boy, I did it, didn't I?

The tenth round was one of the greatest in ring history. Baer had started in the first round with a vicious two-fisted attack which really indicated what was to come.

But the fight had slowed after the first two rounds. It was mostly infighting with an occasional flurry by Baer when he would drive Schmeling to the ropes and pound away at him.

Often Baer danced away.

ALBANY, Ga., June 8.—Well, today I'm going to put my match first because right at this moment I can't think about anything else. I took the worst licking in my whole golf career, a 7-6 smash. For some reason, all unknown to me, I went completely hay-wire from the first tee right on through the 12th where I had the somewhat doubtful pleasure of congratulating Mrs. Fitzhugh. Agnes played fine golf on most of the holes but there were some that I should have won if I had not been Sarazen had a 74 that might have been an 80 or an 81 if a champion had not been under fire. Sarazen had to fall back on chips and one putt to keep in the running.

Hagen might have been much better than he was. The old master was hitting his drives, his long irons and his pitches in flawless fashion and he was always using his head.

NERVOUS AND EAGER.

Amour today was an artist working on a masterpiece. In one of the finest fields that ever went into action there were six tied at 73 and eight who tied at 74. In this latter list there was Gene Sarazen, the open champion of the United States and Great Britain, Sarazen started under much better conditions than Armour faced.

Yet the black Scot. nervous and eager, using his head and his big powerful hands, not only ran away from an all-star field but in addition beat back nature and his own jumpy nerves to take over complete control of the show.

Outside of Armour there were two other stars who put on major thrills. They were Walter Hagen, the veteran who won his first championship in Chicago 10 years ago, and Gene Sarazen, who also won his first big title over Chicago turf back in 1922.

My gallery guide here was Hunk Anderson, the famous coach of Notre Dame. We saw Armour's second blow into the trap at the 11th. From here he played a chip shot from the sand over a fairly deep trap that finished with enough back spin to hold the ball near enough for his four. At the 550-yard 12th he followed a great drive with a long iron that again caught the sanded depths of another grotto. Once again Armour played a flick shot that stopped close enough for his birdie 4.

Considering all the conditions this opening round of Armour's was one of the finest exhibitions of golf I have ever seen. He played almost every type of shot needed to get a recordbreaking score. The bride entered the church with her father, John W. Hardwick, who gave her in marriage and they were met at the altar by the bridegroom and Robert Lee Avary Jr., who served

John W. Hardwick, and Donald McIver.

Dr. John S. Jeukins, pastor of the church, assisted by the Rev. D. M. McIver, father of the bridegroom, read the marriage service which was witnessed by an assembled throng of friends and relatives. The date marked the thirty-fifth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hardwick.

A massing of tall palms and giant woodwardia ferns transformed the interior of the church into a tropical scene, which served as a background for the wedding tableau. Myriads of burning tapers, held in handsome cathedral candelabra, were silhouetted against the background of foliage and shed a soft light over the nuptial scene.

Dr. Ben J. Petter organist of the nose veil. Completing the bride's cos-tume was a round bouquet of white roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. John W. Hardwick, mother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in white crepe, worn with a black straw hat trimmed with white grapes. Her flowers were a shoulder cluster of taligman roses.

Dear Miss Chatfield: We have been married ten years and have three lovely little boys. I am sure there was never a happier home than ours for the first seven years. Three years ago my husband, whom I loved and trusted, betrayed me to another woman and the affair continued for two years. This experience has made a nervous wreck of me. The woman betrayed my husband, as such women generally do, and he came back in sack cloth and ashes, begging for another chance. I agreed to give him another chance for the sake of our boys. He is a model husband now. always telling me how much he loves me and how he feels happier than ever hefore. It's too late, My love for him is dead. You can't without faith and he destroyed mine. No woman has the right to deny her little ones this proper start in life even though she is called upon to pay for it with her heart's blood. Nor can she expect to find happiness for herself by any selfish ign-ing of her obligation to the ch dren. Certainly not when the hi band and father gives every indica tion of repentance for his sin against his family and conducts himself as a "model husband."

It would be idle to argue that an woman could ever be light-hearted and happy after going through this agoniz-ing experience in the sense that she was prior to it. She cannot. An irrevocable damage has been done to her spirit. She has sustained a heartwound, the scar of which she will carry to her grave. The sublime qual ity of her love for her husband and his for her is destroyed. The high hopes and romantic ideals are laid in the dust. But life holds many other pleasant emotions and experiences that need not be denied one by this catastrophe. The satisfaction of sacdoubt every woman whose pride has been cut to the quick reacts in much rifice for the sake of principle is one torts of an erring husband to reestablish himself in her good graces.
When it so happens that she has nobody to consider but herself it is possible that she would be happier rid

Prohibition In Colonial Georgia

Showing How History Repeats Itself Story Told In Sunday's Constitution

Strong drink was not permitted aboard emigrant ships bound for Georgia, but the moment one dropped anchor in Tybee Roads at the mouth of the Savannah river, it was necessary to post guards to prevent rum being introduced into the colony. So much lawlessness reigned in Savannah in the early days, amongst whites and Indians, that on October 7, 1738, General Oglethorpe wrote the colonial trustees, "We want beer, since beer being cheap, is the only means to keep rum out of the colony."

Under the terms of the Royal Charter of the trustees of the colony of Georgia, prohibition of all intoxicating liquors was demanded. This worked for only a short while, as the South Carolina colony across the river flooded the new Georgia colony.

The effect on the trade of Savannah was so marked that ultimately by royal order, the prohibition feature of the Georgia charter was repealed.

So it seems that after 200 years, history is repeat-

This remarkable story from the pen of Ralston Lattimore, of Savannah, with historic details officially quoted, will appear in The Constitution Magazine of next Sunday, June 11th.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Frederick Von Weh is stabbed to death in his top floor quarters in an old studio building while Brent, head of an art firm: Mathewson, another artist, and Sprague, Von Veh's nephew, chat for three minutes outside his door after leaving him alone. In the clay hand of the statue he has been modeling is a dagger, which Papa Marat, who has a restaurant in the basement, says he loaned to a pretty model named Virginia. Manning Colby, Mathewson's fourth floor neighbor, has been trying to finish a panel for Brent's inspection. He is interrupted first by Yon Veh's complaining of the noisy singing of oour college sters, self-styled the Morona. In the studio beneath Manning's. Then Virginia bounces in from the fire escape. She says she quarreled with Yon Veh while posing for him, then went down to the Morons, but left because of the actions of one of the boys. Manning goes to phone Brent he won't be ready but Brent already has started. On the stairs old Dan, the janitor, tells Manning from Veh is dead and startles him by adding, "And you're the man that did it." Why, he doesn't know, but Manning tells Brent in Dan's presence that he has been out only to dine at Marat's. Dan knows this. Papa Marat, once a roving newspaper correspondent, gels the murder story exclusively and sells it to a morning paper. Later Dan demands $2,000 as the price of his silence for a week, and Manning, in an unreasoning panic, pays him to get time to solve the mystery. Virginia asks Manning fiels he may see him alone. She convinces him of her innocence. Quirt leaves for a week at an artists' camp. "The Mole Hill." Manning comes on Marat in the cellar at night as Papa takes a dagger from the chimney. past. The sound came from the direction of another door, which led into the huge back room of the basement, the only other room besides the one in which he now stood and Papa Marat's restaurant. The person was headed for that room. He must be there by this time.

Then suddenly he realized that the hand no longer lay across his mouth, this one hand that had held the other hand was empty. In his intense excitement he had let it drop, He reached out to touch it—nothing there! He stepped down a step noiselessly but quickly—then another—and another—always reaching before him. He touched nothing.

There were two persons in the basement besides himself. One of them knew he was there—bad warned him. Evidntly that one was as eager to like a death shadow disappeared. There were ratlike scratchings. The old man resumed his task of removing debris. Cautiously, Manning peered at his again through the bars of the chair. He was opening a small iron door—the opening to the chimney, of course. He lay down with his cheek to the floor and peered into it. He stuck his hand in and raked out a handful of ashes. He peered at them. The dust on them was so thick that the long, bony hands left marks like the claws of a gigantic bird.

Suddenly there was a sound—it might have been almost anything—a cough, a suppressed sneeze, a mouse. It was difficult to judge just where it came from—probably from across the room. The noan lifted his head—he turned. Manning dropped quickly behind his barricade. But he had seen—he had seen Papa Marat, his lold gray eyes keen as a ferret's, his hair hanging in wisps over his forehead, his mouth under the sweeping mustaches drawn in a thin, taut line.

Manning waited breathless. The sound was not repeated but he saw long shadow on the wall—distorted in the candlelight—so that the beaked

Return of Beer Aids Cotton Textile Industry

NEW YORK. June 8.—The return of beer as a table bevarge has brought to the cotton textile industry a share of benefit in the form of a largely increased demand for cotton damask tablecloths, according to trade reports received by the Cotton-Textile Institute. Sales of towels suitable for bar and similar Cotton-Textile Institute. Sales of towels suitable for bar and similar uses also show corresponding gains. In some instances, jobber and deal-er business in tablecloths has shown

By VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK. June 8.—(P)—The sustained rise in the bond market, unbroken since May 22 last, was checked today when various secondary rail and utility issues were subjected to rather heavy liquidation.

As a result of the erratic performance of the specialties, other groups moved uncertainly, although there were a number of substantial rallies in the last hour. Sales totaled $20.568.000, par value.

Losses of 1 to around 11 points were suffered by issues of Chicago & Northwestern following rumors concerning the financial position of the road. A quick official denial from Chicago, however, resulted in a recovery of part of the initial relapses, but most Northwestern maturities were still rather heavy at the close.

Other sufferers of 1 to 3 or more

Other sufferers of 1 to 3 or more points included Baltimore & Ohio, International Paper, International Telephone, Postal Telegraph, Southern and Western Union.

German government 5 1-2s and 7s rallied around 4 points on rumors that these two issues would not be included in the moratorium. Later announcement of the Reichsbank, however, apparently covered all of the country's foreign debt service with the execption of the standstill credits. Other sufferers of 1 to 3 or more

Simla's tariff boost is interpreted Federation to cease buying raw cotton from British India.

This decision, reached by the federation's emergency committee, is in retaliation for India's 50 per cent increase in duties on non-British cotton cloths announced on June 6.

The Indian action was taken because of the depreciation in the yen and the pressure of Japanese competition.

Indorsement of the committee's relations.

Fashion has all manner of whims concerning stripes this season. Some are vertical, some horizontal, and some diagonal as pictured in today's style. You'll find the diagonal stripe particularly slimming. They adapt themselves perfectly to this pattern. It's really a very simple dress in dark blue and white sheer striped organdie. The attractive collar is crisp white organdie. A vivid-red crepe bow adorns the waistline.

He started swinging off through the trees. As he went, Jean looked below and saw the she-ape hovering around on the ground. With a terrified glance at the beast, Jean called frantically after the ape-man: "TARZAN!" Then as he paused and looked back she cried:

"Please, come back! Please—" the ape, scared. "I'm afraid." Tarzan came slowly back. Jean got up, started toward him and said: "Take me with you." Tarzan slowly understood. He looked at her quizzically, and leisurely started off through the trees.

"Because the president chooses to conduct his own administration, we hear the senator day after day, rising on this floor, condemning the great leader of the nation.

"The time has come now to draw the line. It's time for democrats who have any hesitation in the perform-ance of their duty to repudiate him who calls himself a leader and when

"Let's call it a day," said Long.

NEW YORK, June 8.—(P)— Charles E. Mitchell's salary as head of the National City bank and its subsidiaries was doubled in 1931 from $100.000 to $200.000, he testi-fied under cross-examination today, but he said he made no move to repay $666.666.66 he claims he owed the company.

The $666,666,66 was his share of the management fund split up among 12 officers. He did not report its receipts on his income tax return on the ground it was not income but the ground it was not income but merely an advance, to be paid back. The government charges, however, that the payment actually was a bonus and that there was no intention Mitchell should repay it. The circumstance is made one of the bases for the charge that the banker defrauded the treasury department of 8850,000 income taxes in 1929 and 1930.

In the course of his cross-examina-

Real Estate For Sale Robinson, of Arkansas, Denounces Huey Long for Attack on Baruch

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(P)—A doesn't know what he is talking renewal of an old feud brought Robinson of Arkaness and Long, of To Long's attack on Baruch, a close inson, of Arkansas, and Long, of Inson, of Arkansas, and Long, of personal friend of Robinson, the Arkansan, face to face in the senate kansan said: today in a verbal encounter in which the two democrats voiced threats each said Mr. Bernard M. Baruch is the to seek the defeat of the other in coming elections.

Robinson, the democratic leader.

Robinson, the democratic leader.

Robinson, the democratic reason. said he spoke both for himself and his party in the quarrel with Long, and called upon his colleagues "to remoderate him who calls himself a lead-middle himself a lead-middle him who calls himself a lead-middle him who calls himself and has never volunteered any suggestion to Mr. Hoover or Mr. Roosevelt. He is no busybody, and when he visited the White House he was asked to do so.

Amid applause from the gallery.
Robinson added a reference to the Louisianan's repeated attacks upon President Roosevelt's program and said that Long was "mad simply because Roosevelt won't let him run the administration."

was asked to do so.
"There never has been a downfall of Woodrow Wilson, notwithstanding men like Huey Long who tried to contribute to such a downfall."

As an explanation of Long's attacks upon the Roosevelt program, Robinson advanced.

Long, opposing the pending industrial-public works bill, as he has several other sections of the administratrain other sections of the administra-tion's recovery program, set the wrangle off with a denunciation of Bernard M. Baruch, a New York fi-nancier, who, he said, was influenc-ing the administration.

Baruch's "lieutenants," Long said, were mentioned for administrators of the industrial bill. He said others in were mentioned for administrators of the industrial bill. He said others in the administration of the farm relief program and the budget bureau were henchmen of the New Yorker.

Barkley, democrat, Kentucky, demanded that he prove it, and Robinson took the floor to observe "the senator from Louisiana will never see the day he can stand in the class with Bernard M. Baruch."

"The senator from Louisiana attacks private citizens and hides himself behind the cloak of senatoria immunity." Robinson said.

Face reddening, Long shouted he had "settled" a political matter with Robinson in Arkansas in the last election by helping send back to the senator see the senator in the last election by helping send back to the senator says he's coming into Louisiana?"

"If you come into Arkansas," replied Robinson.

"I may not have time to come into Arkansas."

"And I may not have time to come into Louisiana."

"Let's call it a day," said Long.

On the Air Today

In the course of his cross-examina-tion, United States Attorney George Z. Medalie elicited testimony con-cerning Mitchell's conveyance of 8,500 shares of Anaconda Copper stock to W. D. Thornton in 1930 which many observers considered a point for the defense.

The government charges this sale, like another deal with Mrs. Mitchell the year before, was a sham, and Irvin S. Cobb believes that he has already traversed two-thirds of the hard road to fame. He has passed successfully through the first two stages—that of having a hotel named after him and that of having a cigar dedicated to him. Only to have his monicker adorn a Pullman car remains. He will talk over WGST and the Columbia network at 7 o'clock tonight. the year before, was a sham, and seeks to support the allegation by the fact that Mitchell later repurchased the stock. It was brought out in the cross-examination that Mitchell was not aware he had bought back the securities from Mitchell was not aware he had bought back the securities from Thornton.

Mitchell was a director in Anaconda and a close friend of the late John D. Ryan, head of the company. The banker previously had testified that it was Ryan who arranged for him to sell his stock to Thornton because he did not want Mitchell, as a director, to sell the company's stock in open market.

Renee Newman, Beverly Rich, Doro-Has Laurel and Hardy thy Campbell, Doris Regensburg, Never in the career of those fam Margaret Garrett, Mary Caposella, screen comedians. Laurel and Hardy, Lourine Tate, Tina Caposella, Carolyn have they had better opportunities to exploit their particular type of humor than in "The Devil's Brother," the feature length picture which presents them at Leow's Grand theater for a week's run, starting Friday. Appearing with them is Dennis King, famous stage player, who is remembered for his excellent performance in both the screen and stage productions of "The Ruth Walker, Marioric Graces, Venezular Countries of the Ruth Walker, Warioric Graces, Venezular Countries of the Ruth Walker, Claire Ledisinger, Sue Clay Welch, Claire Led have they had better opportunities to his excellent performance in both the screen and stage productions of "The Vagabond King." Thelma Todd is another notable member of the cast. "The Devil's Brother" was suggested by "Fra Diavolo," the comic opera of a previous generation. The catchy music which delighted our grandparents is still as fine as any everwritten for the comic opera stage and it is impressively exploited by Dennis King. Laurel and Hardy are more than equal to the task of impersonating the comic members of the cast. They have imparted their own famous personalities to their roles, with results which make "The Devil's Brother" probably their best screen effort.
